

Executive Biography

Michele Malejki

Global Head of Social Impact, HP Inc.

Michele Malejki leverages over 15 years of experience in the social impact space to lead HP's corporate digital equity work globally. She is responsible for HP's sustainable impact goal to accelerate digital equity for 150 million people by 2030 – a goal she aims to achieve by aligning HP's technology and solutions with incredible organizations sparking positive change around the world.

Michele's advisory board roles include UN Women's Global Innovation Coalition for Change, the President's Council of Cornell Women, the Global Partnership for Education's Private Sector Advisory Group, and Save the Children's Council Action Team on Gender Equality. She also served as the Sustainability Director for the ClimateForce: Antarctica 2022 Expedition, led by renown explorer Robert Swan, OBE.

While she began her career in investment banking at JPMorgan, Michele's passion for social and sustainable impact led her on a remarkable journey to Southeast Asia and Sub-Saharan Africa, where she spent several years leading non-profits including One Acre Fund and the Alliance for Financial Inclusion. She also previously served as the Deputy Director of Program at the Clinton Global Initiative.

Michele holds a MSc in Sustainable Development from the School of Oriental and African Studies (SOAS), University of London and a BSc in Industrial and Labor Relations from Cornell University.

A mom of two and a lover of languages, Michele speaks English, Spanish, French and Khmer. She is based in her hometown of New York City.
